News Summary.

The steamship Quaker City, Captain West, which left New York at 4 P. M. on Saturday last, arrived at her wharf yesterday about 1 P. M. Her passenger and freight list will be found under their proper heads.

Gen. Joseph E. Johnston is at present in New York city, where he has had many visitors. He is in excellent health, and the New York papers say that he represents the submission of the people of the South as unreserved and in good faith.

Governor Brownlow, of Tennessee, in a late letter, says the entire State of Tennessee abounds with thieves and robbers, who would murder a man for his watch or a five dollar bill. He has no faith in the Southern professions of loyalty, thinks the war ended at least two years too soon for the good of the country, and advises the Republican majority not to admit to Congress indiscriminately the representatives from the lately rebel States.

It is reported that JOHN OVERTON, well known in Tennessee as one of the most popular of the rich men of the State, has had his pardon revoked by order of the President, who is said to have telegraphed Gov. Brownlow to that effect.

Telegrams have been received by the President, Gen. Fisk and the Freedmen's Bureau, signed by seven or eight of the leading influential men of Tennessee, which remonstrate against the anticipated removal of a supervising officer of the above Bureau, now on duty in that State, and the appointment of a civilian of the State instead.

Mexican news received at New York by the steamships Manhattan and Eagle, mention the capture of the city of Monterey by the republicans, and the siege of Matamoros was still closely maintained. The latter place, too, they were confident would soon be in their hands, as they had been reinforced there to the extent of eighteen hundred men.

Texas advises say that directions have been received there from Washington not to muster out any more troops or to dispose of any more army property until the receipt of further orders. It is said that Provisional Governor HAMMILL will soon issue his proclamation for the election about the middle of December of State Convention Delegates, who are to assemble about a month after.

It is announced in our Havana advices of the 12th inst. that the Haytian troubles are at an end, a settlement having been brought about by the American and British officials. Whether this implies a complete termination of the rebellion in that Republic is not exactly clear.

The Cubans are expecting a new Captain-General next month, in the person of Gen. LERSUND. It was anticipated that the United States naval steamers Harriet and Rhode Island would leave Havana in a few days for this country, bringing with them the ram Serrano.

Dr. OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES, of Boston, has been lecturing before the Mercantile Library Association, in Irving Hall, New York, on the "Poetry of the War."

Some further interesting particulars of affairs connected with the fall of Urugayana are furnished by South American newspapers. The Emperor of Brazil has issued a proclamation urging a vigorous continuation of the war. The allies are very sanguine that LOPEZ, the President of Paraguay, must soon succumb, and it is their intention, on the occurrence of such event, to compel him to submit to liberal navigation arrangements for the interior waters of his country, which will create a heavy demand for American steamers.

Mr. C. I. VALLANDHEIM visited Eaton, Ohio, a few days ago, to transact some business. As soon as it became generally known that he was in the little town, a rumor became prevalent that he was there for the purpose of making a speech. It happens that the people of Eaton are very much opposed to Mr. VALLANDHEIM personally, and the idea of his making a speech in their midst so exasperated a lot of the young men of the place that they early endeavored to capture the speaker, and made a loud call for his appearance. Understanding that trouble was in store for him, Mr. VALLANDHEIM made a noisy exit from the house, and passed his retreat through fields and over fences in the direction of the depot—running at the top of his speed, followed by an angry and excited mob of boys and young men, one of whom struck him a severe blow and knocked him to the ground, while he was getting on the train.

The Louisville Journal says that the Hon. JOHN BELL, of Tennessee, is about to write a letter to the President of the United States, which will doubtless attract much attention. Mr. BELL's position and motives have been misunderstood, and consequently misrepresented.

Advice from New Orleans, of the 15th, state that there is unusual activity among military circles in that city. Since the reception of the recent dispatches from the Rio Grande, mysterious orders have been issued and the sale of boats prohibited, and those on hand are being placed on a war footing. The sale of all transportation and supplies has ceased. The 1st, 4th, and 6th regiments of cavalry have been ordered to embark for Indian-land, and report for duty at San Antonio, General Canby is also destined for the same place. Gen. FOREYER, Gen. SCHUMBERG's Chief of Staff, has gone to Brazos.

CHARLESTON. WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 22, 1865.

THE QUESTION of the relief of our citizens, to some extent, from their condition of pecuniary embarrassment, has already been considered in our columns, and the public mind seems composed upon the proposition to provide, if possible, for the expense of the current year without resort to taxes. But there is a feeling that even this is not enough; that while it will give relief to many persons who are so reduced they could not raise the funds for taxes, and provide the necessities of subsistence, it does not supply the desideratum; that the paramount want now is of capital, and of capital particularly in agricultural pursuits; that planters have not the funds with which to carry on their operations now, since wages must be paid, and paid regularly, and in advance of products; that they must, of necessity, therefore, contract operations, or suspend operations, or dispose of their estates for the pittance they would now bring in market; and to the end, therefore, of facilitating the cultivation of the land, and of protecting proprietors in the remnant of estates, there is a desire to still further extend the policy, and, if it be possible, to raise a fund upon the credit of the State, with which to extend to business interests the facilities they so much require. More particularly is this the feeling, when it is regarded as imperative to repudiate the debt which, though small, is still available capital in the hands of many persons, and which, withdrawn, will leave the destitution greater than it is.

The policy of granting State aid to industrial enterprise in normal conditions of society is eminently vicious, as is the practice of taking medicine in perfect health; but when the State is stricken by misfortunes, such as those which have fallen on us, it is not only proper, but imperative, to draw upon the reserve of its resources for the immediate strength to bear up under them. The case is exceptional, and as an exceptional case necessarily requires an exceptional policy; and while the aid of the State at ordinary times does tend to diminish enterprise, and encourage men at the loss of their own muscle to lean on Hercules, and finding that the car of progress can run without them, does tend to make them rather inclined to ride on that car than help to pull it, still the matter now is of pressing exigency. It can be no precedent for other times, for no such times can ever come again; and if they shall, it were proper we should have a precedent so necessary made for the occasion.

We are inclined to urge, therefore, the adoption of this policy. There can be no loss to the State of any fund she may have to offer. The landed interest may be pledged for the debt to a portion only of its value. The fund expended would increase the products of the State, and increase, therefore, its taxable resources; it will increase, also, the value of the land, and thus increase the value of the security; and the principle, therefore, of giving the credit of the State, at this particular time, to increase her own capital, when that capital is so necessary to the first steps towards improvement, we heartily approve. As to the details of the plan—whether the credit should be upon real estate alone, or on personal securities as well, or to planters alone, or to other business interests—are questions of importance, of course, but not necessarily involved in the original proposition, and may be settled when they properly arise.

Whether such fund can be raised by the State in the present condition of affairs, is, perhaps, to be questioned; but the credit of our State has always been high. She owes but little now; that little, when forced to the act of repudiation, now exacted, will be less. There never will be a question of that sense of moral obligation to pay the debt; there will be as little ground to apprehend another compulsory repudiation. The fund received would be expended in developing the resources of the State, which would further secure the bondholders. There is vast capital at the North seeking investment; and even abroad there is an abundance, and a desire for securities that pay the interest we would offer. The question of dissolution is now finally settled; and we think it quite probable that money may be had upon the credit of the State, on better terms at present than it could before the war. If, therefore, it can be had, we think it were proper to make the effort; and we would commend the measure to the members of the Legislature, soon to meet, and if it shall receive their approbation, we would urge them to act upon it at an early moment.

THERE SEEMS to be an impression that General LEWIS M. AYER has withdrawn from the canvass for Congress for the Second Congressional District. We have the highest assurances for stating that such is not the case, and that General Ayer will serve if elected.

Owing to the many counterfeits in circulation, banking and other parties frequently send notes of large denominations to the United States Treasurer's office, asking whether they are genuine. That office has not yet lost anything by counterfeits, its experts readily detecting spurious issues.
